

Hey, You Should Solve This Puzzle

by Skaldskaparmal

Twelve clues are missing a word (the same word each time) that needs to be put back before the clue can be solved.

To compensate, twelve other clues have an extra word that needs to be removed before the clue can be solved.

The remaining ten clues are normal.

Reading all of the first letters of the extra words, followed by all the last letters, in clue order, will produce a phrase.

The phrase is what I hope you will say if I tell you the title of this puzzle.

But if you respond negatively, I won't respond back with the phrase. Instead, I will <shaded entry>.

Entries can be found in Merriam-Webster except for 12A, 17D, and 22D.
